

License agreement:

The software is free of charge. You may use the software as long as you wish on as many of your computers as you wish. The software is NOT in the public domain.

Copyright and owner ship rights of the software and the source code remain at comSID.

You may use the software under the following terms:

- * You are not allowed to change the program or the documentation
- * You are not allowed to decompile the software or make it human readable again by other means
- * You are not allowed to sell or pass the software
- * You have read the license agreement and the following disclaimer of warranty and do agree with it

The software and documentation is offered with no warranty of any kind.

comSID gives no explicit or implicit warranties, including but not limited to warranties about design, commercially availability and usability for a specific purpose.

comSID does neither guarantee that the functions of the software fit your requirements, nor that the software is error free and functioning without interruptions, nor that errors in the software and/or documentation will be fixed.

Disclaimer of warranty:

Under no circumstances (including carelessness, gross carelessness) can comSID become liable for loss of income or damage of any kind, resulting from the use of software or resulting from missing possibility to use the product or the documentation. This also applies, if comSID has been informed about the possibility of such cases.

Some states do not allow restrictions of guarantees respectively disclaiming warranties. In such cases, the restriction of guarantee respectively the disclaimer of warranty does not apply to you and possible titles for compensation for damages are limited to the amount of a possibly payed license fee.

Copyright:

Program and documentation are copyrighted (c) by comSID GmbH & Co. KG